

South Africans in Switzerland: Call for participants in a study on language attitudes

We are a group of researchers from the University of Zurich and are currently conducting a research project on attitudes towards language and identity held by South Africans living in Switzerland. We are looking for participants willing to share with us their experiences and attitudes regarding language usage in South Africa and Switzerland, both in an online survey and possibly in an interview setting also.

If you are interested in taking part in this study, please click the following link or scan the QR code to access the online questionnaire:
