History of the English Language 1: Focus on Old English (06SM440-100)

Type of module: Module

ECTS: 6

Description

Courses

Requirements

Organization

Component

General description: This module introduces students to the history of English and to English historical linguistics. It is intended for Bachelor students in their second year and consists of two parts: a lecture and a seminar. The lecture provides an overview on the history of the English language from the Indo-European pre-history of English to the Norman Conquest of 1066. The seminar introduces the students to Old English (the language spoken and written in Britain between AD 450-1150). The module gives an insight into these early forms of English and provides guidance on how to read original texts in Old English with the help of glossaries. It also introduces some basic principles of English historical linguistics and of the study of early medieval English literature.

ECTS: 6

Notes: This lecture course will be held on site, in a face-to-face setting, but also made available online, for asynchronous viewing.

Number of participants: No space restriction

3. Request Modules (Anfragemodule)

- places per module are limited
- places per group in the module are also limited
- requests must be prioritized
  - one single list for both Major and Minor
  - modules are prioritized first
  - in modules with more than one group, the groups are prioritized within the module
- all Bachelor Seminars in English Literature
- all Bachelor Seminars in English Linguistics
- all colloquia (in Literature, Linguistics, and Language Skills and Culture)

Literary Histories: The Long Twentieth Century (06SM440-222)

Type of module: Module

ECTS: 6

Description

Courses

Requirements

Organization

Component

General description: This module will introduce students to literary texts - as well as the relevant generic, cultural, and historical contexts - from the long twentieth century (c. 1914 to the present; e.g. modernist poetry, the literature of World War One, British 'kitchen-sink' drama, feminist literature, postmodernism, the postcolonial novel, etc.).

ECTS: 6

Number of participants: 57

Learning Outcome: Students will be able to: (a) outline the key historical facts relevant to the topic of their course; (b) explain the interrelationship between this historical context and the primary texts discussed in class; (c) formulate sustained literary critical arguments that take into account the cultural and generic conventions of the time; (d) write mid-length literary critical essays; (e) present the findings of their literary critical and historical research in other formats (e.g. short input papers, posters, visual essays, short presentations, leading a class discussion, etc.); (f) engage in open and constructive academic debates with their peers; (g) list a number of useful techniques to read and understand difficult secondary texts.

Procedure assignment: During the allocation of places, the priorities defined by the students will be taken into account.

Type of module: Module
ECTS: 3

- Description
- Courses
- Requirements
- Organization
- Component

General description: Excursions complement the core component of the Bachelor curriculum and encourage students to relate their academic interests to places, topics, and problems beyond the confines of their own university. (Examples may include theater weeks abroad, visits to museums or exhibitions in Switzerland or further afield, and field trips for research purposes.)

ECTS: 3

Notes: When applying for this module, students must upload the confirmation email they received from englishstudies@es.uzh.ch on July 26, 2022.

Number of participants: tbd

Learning Outcome: Students are able to: (a) relate the questions and concerns raised in their course of studies to the world beyond the university proper; (b) demonstrate how the excursion in turn contributes to and complements their previous studies.

Procedure assignment: manual place allocation

Languages: Englisch
