

15past15

podcast series on global history

<https://www.hist.uzh.ch/de/dhl/podcast.html>

<https://twitter.com/15past15Podcast>

Also available on Apple Podcasts, Spotify, and other providers

Season 2: Wealth and the Writing of History

15past15 discusses how the past is made, and by whom. Its first season (2019) focused on history and history-writing in East Asia, from the sixteenth century to today. In this second season, we examine changing understandings of Wealth / Reichtum / Richesse, from the medieval to the modern, and from Europe to Asia, the Americas, and beyond. What was the relationship between wealth and natural resources? How has wealth been expressed, both intellectually and in terms of material culture? How have wealth inequalities affected power, health, and global development? And why should historians care?

Episodes:

1. Discussing Wealth in the Corona Era (Martin Dusinberre, Zurich)
2. Why Wealth? (Simon Teuscher, Zurich)
3. Dealing with Global Inequality (Corinna Unger, EUI)
4. Wealth and the Anthropocene (Jeremy Davies, Leeds)
5. Why Spain was not an Extractive Empire (Regina Grafe, EUI)
6. How 'Luxury' Changed across Time (Giorgio Riello, EUI)
7. Investing in New Amsterdam (Eva Brugger, Zurich)
8. Trickle-down Health (Iris Borowy, Shanghai)
9. Brazil's Black Gold (Antoine Acker, Zurich)
10. A Tale of Tuna (Nadin Hée, FU Berlin)
11. Thinking with Medieval Markets (Joel Kaye, Bernard)
12. Wealth in the Sharia Courts (Beshara Doumani, Brown)
13. To Save or Not to Save (Sheldon Garon, Princeton)
14. Don't Leave the Past to the Economists (Mary O'Sullivan, Geneva)
15. Wealth in a post-Corona world (to be released later in 2020)

For our binge-listeners, all episodes will be released on 15 May 2020

