Lucerne Univ.	Main supervisor for four BA-level and nine MA-level theses on various themes in political communication, comparative politics, and political sociology.

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

A running list of courses with syllabi and evaluations available here.

Nov 2022   Data Access and Regulation

Uni Milan	MA-level course on "Data Access and regulation". Ethics and regulation of digital data and web mining, mining data from the web in R, Reproducibility, Git and Github, HTML language, URLs, HTTP protocol (GET, POST), CSS and XPath selectors, JSON and XML, regexprs, R programming, web-based REST APIs.

Fall 2022   Social Media, Political Science, and the Study of Democracy

UZH	Lecturer, Summer School in Democracy Studies, University of Zurich.

Spring 2021   Research Design in Quantitative Perspective, Module II

Lucerne Univ.	Lecturer, master seminar "Research Design in a Quantitative Perspective, Module II". Advanced and design-based inference, regression, experimental design, instrumental variables, difference-in-difference, regression discontinuity.

Jan 2021   Data Access and Regulation

Uni Milan   MA-level course on "Data Access and regulation". Ethics and regulation of digital data and web mining, mining data from the web in R, Reproducibility, Git and Github, HTML language, URLs, HTTP protocol (GET, POST), CSS and XPath selectors, JSON and XML, regexprs, R programming, web-based REST APIs.

Fall 2020   Research Design in Quantitative Perspective

Lucerne Univ.   Lecturer, master seminar "Research Design in a Quantitative Perspective". Comparative, statistical, and experimental method, endogeneity, measurement error, and selection bias. The course includes applied sessions where students can familiarize with statistical methods using R.

Spring 2020   Replication seminar: Doing Research in Practice

Lucerne Univ.   Lecturer, Master-level seminar "Replication Seminar: Doing Research in Practice". The purpose of the seminar is to facilitate the task of students that are keen on developing an empirical project in their Master theses. This seminar is designed to fill the gap between the students' final works and the classic methods seminars, while offering a service to the scientific community to contrast the replication crisis, by double-checking and re-testing published scientific evidence.

Feb 2020   Introduction to R for Data Science

Campus Lucerne   PhD-level workshop "Introduction to R for Data Science".

Jan 2020   Data Access and Regulation

Uni Milan   MA-level course on "Data Access and regulation". Ethics and regulation of digital data and web mining, mining data from the web in R, Reproducibility, Git and Github, HTML language, URLs, HTTP protocol (GET, POST), CSS and XPath selectors, JSON and XML, regexprs, R programming, web-based REST APIs.

June 2019   Replicable Research and Reporting in R

Lucern Univ.   Instructor, PhD-level workshop "Replicable Research and Reporting in R". Replication crisis and the importance of replicability in research. Structuring large research projects to achieve full replicability; reporting in R markdown; introduction to using Git and Github.

May 2019   Advanced Regression Analysis in R

Lucern Univ.   Instructor, PhD-level workshop "Advanced Regression Analysis in R". Main topics: Generalized Linear Model with linear and non-linear relations, using Monte Carlo simulations to predict arbitrary quantities of interest.

Jan 2019 – May 2019   Replication Seminar: Doing Research in Practice

Lucerne Univ.   Lecturer, Master-level seminar "Replication Seminar: Doing Research in Practice".

Oct 2018   Introduction to R for Data Analysis

Luzern Hochschule   Instructor, Master-level workshop "Introduction to R for Data Analysis". R workshop providing an introduction to the R programming language. Main topics: R operators, data types, functions, control structures, data manipulation (base R and dplyr), basic statistical analysis, elements of more advanced issues (generalized linear model, Bayesian hierarchical modeling, text mining, research replicability).

Sept 2018 – Dec 2018   Research Design in a Quantitative Perspective

Lucerne Univ.   Lecturer, master seminar "Research Design in a Quantitative Perspective".

Sept – Dec 2018   Introduction to Political Sociology
