Where a child is born to a woman who is married to a man more than six qamariah months from the date of the marriage or within four qamariah years after dissolution of the marriage either by the death of the man or by divorce, the woman not having remarried, the nasab or paternity of the child is established in the man, but the man may, by way of li'an or imprecation, disavow or disclaim the child before the Court.

Birth more than four years after dissolution of marriage

111. Where the child is born more than four qamariah years after the dissolution of the marriage either by the death of the man or by divorce, the paternity of the child shall not be established in the man unless he or any of his heirs asserts that the child is his issue.

Birth after declaration of completion of 'iddah

112. Where a woman, not having remarried, makes a declaration that the period of 'iddah has been completed, whether the period is for death or divorce, and she is subsequently delivered of a child, the paternity of the child shall not be ascribed to her husband unless the child was born less than four qamariah years from the date of the dissolution of the marriage either by the death of the husband or by divorce.

Syubhah* intercourse

113. Where a man has syubhah sexual intercourse with a woman, and she is subsequently delivered of a child between the period of six qamariah months to four qamariah years after the intercourse, the paternity of the child shall be ascribed to the man.

Conditions for valid acknowledgment

114. Where a man acknowledges another, either expressly or impliedly, as his lawful child, the paternity of the child shall be established in the man, if the following conditions are fulfilled, that is to say:

- (a) the paternity of the child is not established in any one else;
- (b) the ages of the man and the child are such that filial relationship is possible between them;
- (c) where the child is of discreet age, the child has acquiesced in the acknowledgment;
- (d) the man and the mother of the child could have been lawfully joined in marriage at the time of conception;
- (e) the acknowledgment is not merely that he or she is his son, but that the child is his legitimate son;
- (f) the man is competent to make a contract;
- (g) the acknowledgment is with the distinct intention of conferring the status of legitimacy;
- (h) the acknowledgement is definite and the child is acknowledged to be the child of his body.

Presumption from acknowledgment rebuttable

115. The presumption of paternity arising from acknowledgment may only be rebutted by—

- (a) disclaimer on the part of the person acknowledged;

- (b) proof of such proximity of age, or seniority of the acknowledgee, as would render the alleged relationship physically impossible;
- (c) proof that the acknowledgee is in fact the child of some other person; or
- (d) proof that the mother of the acknowledgee could not possibly have been the lawful wife of the acknowledgor at the time when the acknowledgee could have been conceived.

Acknowledgment by a woman in 'iddah

116. Where the acknowledgor is a woman who is married or who is observing the 'iddah, the paternity of the person acknowledged shall not be ascribed to her husband unless her acknowledgment is confirmed by him or by evidence.

Acknowledging another as mother or father

117. Where a person acknowledges another as his father or mother, the acknowledgment, if assented to or confirmed by the acknowledgee, whether during the lifetime or after the decease of the acknowledgor, shall constitute a valid relationship, in so far as the parties themselves are concerned, provided that the ages of the acknowledgor and the acknowledgee are such that filial relationship is possible between them.

Acknowledgment other than as a child, mother, or father

118. Where a person acknowledges another as a relation other than as a son, mother, or father, the acknowledgment shall not affect any other person unless that other person confirms the acknowledgment.

Acknowledgment irrevocable

119. Once an acknowledgment or confirmation has been made in respect of paternity or relationship, the acknowledgment or confirmation shall become irrevocable.
